DIRECTION OR PARTICIPATION IN THE ACTIVITIES OF A RESEARCH GROUP CHARACTERIZED BY NATIONAL OR INTERNATIONAL COLLABORATIONS

- |                              |   |
|------------------------------|---|
| Jan. 2025ongoing  | - Participation in in the research activities of the EU Next Generation Project: PE8 Age-It: Ageing Well in an Ageing Society [Spoke 5: Sostenibilità dei sistemi di cura all'anziano in una società che invecchia] , Work Package 6, Leader: Marco Albertini , UNIBO; Co-Leader: Cecilia Tomassini , UNIMOL; Affiliates: UNIMIB, UNIPD, INRCA, BETA 80, ISTAT]. The research activities encompass the systematic collection and rigorous analysis of data and information to carry out a series of case studies examining local policies and services – spanning the public, private, and third sectors – designed to support caregivers of older adults. The research explores centers of varying scales, ranging from metropolitan cities to small municipalities in inland regions, across multiple Italian territories.   |
| March 2024ongoing | - Participation in the research activities of the PREDLIFE consortium , funded by the Academy of Finland and carried out by the University of Turku and the University of Jyväskylä ( https://sites.utu.fi/predlife/en/ ) [PI of the consortium and leader of the sociological subproject: Dr. Satu Helske (University of Turku); PI of the statistical subproject: Dr. Jouni Helske (University of Jyväskylä)]. Research activities encompass developing a robust theoretical framework to analyze how prevalent gender norms at both national and local levels shape fathers' uptake of parental leave. On the empirical side, a content analysis of Finnish party manifestos has been completed to construct two indices – measuring the level of “familialization” and “de-familialization” – which serve as proxies to assess the local prevalence of traditionalist or libertarian preferences regarding gender norms. Preliminary findings from this work were presented to a committee of the Finnish Parliament in October 2024 and have been incorporated into an article published in an international peer- | reviewed scientific journal (Class A, Scientific Disciplinary Area: GSPS-02/A). In June 2025, the project was renewed and expanded under the title SHARELEAVE – Parental leave in context: social drivers of sharing care, funded by the Research Council of Finland (€600,000, 2025–2028, PI: Satu Helske). I am involved as a member of the international research team with specific responsibilities in the comparative dimension of the project. SHARELEAVE adopts a multilevel longitudinal approach combining Finnish population register data with comparative data from Sweden, Germany, and the Netherlands. The project investigates how care arrangements are shaped by couple dynamics and social environments, with particular attention to social stratification and inequalities in leave uptake.

- Feb. 2022 – Collaboration with Torben Fischer (Martin-Luther - Universität Halle-Wittenberg)
Nov. 2024 in the project “The new politics of Eco-social Policies”. The paper theoretically analyzes the new emerging lines of conflict that characterize eco-social policies and the positions assumed by political actors. The theoretical framework is applied to the German case study. The results were presented at national conferences and included in a paper published in an international peer-reviewed scientific journal (Class A, Scientific Disciplinary Area: GSPS-02/A)

- Feb. 2019 – Participation in the PRIN Project “Models of Capitalism and Types of Aug. 2022 Democracy” [PI: Professor Carlo Trigilia; Participating Units: Università degli Studi di Firenze, Università di Bologna, Università di Macerata, Università degli studi di Teramo, Università degli studi di Torino]. The research activities were structured around two key areas: welfare policy analysis and social stratification analysis. On the policy front, a comparative study of welfare policies in advanced economies was conducted using both qualitative and quantitative methodologies. This was followed by an in-depth exploration of specific policy domains, particularly social investment policies and family policies, as well as an examination of reforms enacted in Italy over recent decades. On the social stratification front, the research focused on analyzing survey data on social stratification across eight countries included in the PRIN project (Denmark, Sweden, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, the United Kingdom, and the United States). Special attention was given to the evolution of "class politics" in the post-Fordist era. The findings from these research activities have been published in four book chapters and numerous articles appearing in both national and international peer-reviewed scientific journals.

- April 2022 – Participation in the Horizon 2020 Project “Working, Yet Poor”, [Coordinated by Dec. 2022 the Université du Luxembourg – 11 participants] Bologna Unit [Unit Coordinator: Prof. Dr. Carlo Zoli, DSG, University of Bologna; Coordinator of the Sociological Team: Prof. Dr. Nicola De Luigi, SPS, University of Bologna ]. Within the framework of the project, I was entrusted with analyzing the Italian case study, focusing on social policies – including pensions, family policies, social inclusion, and poverty alleviation measures – and labor market policies, both active and passive, to evaluate their impact on in-work poverty (IWP). The research further delved into the evolution of family-related policy instruments in Italy, such as family allowances, parental leave, and early childcare services (ages 0–3), and their potential role in mitigating IWP. The findings were incorporated into the project’s National Report and disseminated through two articles published in national and international peer-reviewed scientific journals.

- Oct. 2020 – Collaboration with Torben Fischer (Martin-Luther-Universität Halle-Wittenberg, Nov. 2022 MLU, Halle, Germany) in the project “The coalitional welfare politics of Populist

Radical Right Parties” The study focused on analyzing the welfare state programs of government coalitions that include radical right parties. The work analyzed the welfare reforms pursued in Italy and Austria by the Lega-M5S (2018-2019) and ÖVP-FPÖ (2017-2019) governments, respectively, and the role of the coalitions in determining specific policy outcomes. The results were included in a paper published in an international peer-reviewed scientific journal (Class A, Scientific Disciplinary Area: GSPS-02/A) and selected for the EPSR Early Careers Prize.

- March 2025 – ongoing – Participation in the development of the Horizon 2025 Europe Project Proposal: INCAREWORK – Intersectional Care/Work Negotiations under Constrained Career Trajectories [Call: HORIZON-CL2-2025-02-TRANSFO-04]. I am fully involved in both the scientific design and the coordination of the proposal. In particular, I contributed to the drafting of the main sections for the first stage (Excellence and Impact), and to the strategic organization of the international partnership. The project is coordinated by the University of Bologna (UNIBO), under the scientific co-leadership of Roberto Rizza (UNIBO) and Caroline de la Porte (Copenhagen Business School, CBS). The consortium includes research teams from Spain (Universidad Autónoma de Barcelona, UAB), the Netherlands (Radboud University), Germany (University of Duisburg-Essen), Sweden (Lund University), Ireland (University College Dublin, UCD), Poland (Uniwersytet SWPS), Estonia (Tallinn University), and Belgium (Observatoire Social Européen). The proposal investigates how micro-, meso-, and macro-level factors interact to shape parenting strategies and career trajectories across diverse welfare and labor market contexts.
- July 2025 – ongoing – Collaboration with Martin Gurín (Universität Bremen) in a research project exploring the blocking forces in family policy transformation in Italy and Czech Republic.
- Dec. 2024 – August 2024 – Collaboration (co.co.co) with the Department of Political and Social Science of the University of Florence for an updating of the literature and data analysis concerning the relationship between social inequalities and democracy (Supervisor: Professor Carlo Trigilia/Luigi Burrone).
- May 2024 – ongoing – Collaboration with Nicola De Luigi (SPS, University of Bologna) and Lorenzo Cattani (DAR, University of Bologna) in the research project “Gender role attitudes inside and outside the household: The Italian case study”. The research analyzes the evolution of gender norms attitudes in Italy and their main drivers.
- Nov. 2024 – ongoing – Collaboration with Lorenzo Cattani (DAR, University of Bologna) in the research project “Caring and Conflict: Class, Gender, and Authority as determinants of workers’ mental well-being in extreme cases of interpersonal conflicts in the workplace”.
- Sept. 2024 – ongoing – Collaboration with the Roberto Rizza (SPS, University of Bologna), Lorenzo Cattani (DAR, University of Bologna) and Rebecca Paraciani (SPS, University of Bologna), in a research project studying the phenomenon of mothers’ and fathers’ voluntary resignation in Italy (Book contract with Fondazione Feltrinelli).

- Jan. 2023 – Collaboration with Rebecca Paraciani (SPS, University of Bologna) in the project “The Platformization of Cleaning Jobs”. The project investigates the impact of the platform economy on cleaning jobs and to what extent such effect is mediated by the national welfare and labor market institutions.
- April 2024 – Collaboration with Nicola De Luigi (SPS, University of Bologna) and Claudia Colombaroli (University of Turin) in a research project investigating how the income and territorial dimensions shape households’ ECEC uptake, leading to multiple inequalities.
- Jan. – Aug. 2023 Collaboration (co.co.co) with the Department of Political and Social Science of the University of Florence for an updating of the capitalisms and democracies literature review (Supervisor: Professor Carlo Trigilia/Luigi Burrioni).
- April- Sept. 2020 Participation in the project “Europe in Tuscany” funded by the DG Regio of the European Commission: Project Coordinator: Prof. Laura Leonardi, University of Florence, DSPS: Participating Partners: Controradio Firenze, Sharing Europe and University of Florence. Research activities on ‘Tuscan university students’ perceptions of the European Union and on the use of the European structural funds in Tuscany.
