SUPERVISION OF POSTGRADUATE RESEARCH (INCL. COMPLETED PHDS)

I supervise doctoral and post-doctoral researchers pursuing research in legal philosophy, legal theory and in ethics, moral and political philosophy. I examine regularly PhD theses in the above fields both in the UK and internationally. My extensive experience in doctoral programmes includes the role as Director of PhD programme at the School of Law, University of Glasgow (2016-2017), which comprises about 75 PhD students working across all major legal subdisciplines. Further, my involvement as co-founder and director of the PhD Program Globalisation and Legal Theory (see earlier under indicators of esteem) helped me gain considerable expertise in the planning and delivery of an international PhD programme. Finally, over the years I have been frequently involved in methods' training for PhD students with most notable example, in 2016-17, as the convenor of the PhD Methods Course of the School of Law, University of Glasgow, which is delivered to all 1st year PhD students.
