

Jan Stöckmann works on twentieth century political thought and diplomacy. His doctoral dissertation, completed in 2017 at the University of Oxford, explores the formation of International Relations as an academic discipline from 1914 to the Second World War. Other interests include the histories of foreign policy governance, international development, and European integration. Jan holds a B.A. in Philosophy and Economics, and a dual M.A./M.Sc. in International and World History. From 2017 to 2018, he was the Brady-Johnson Fellow at International Security Studies, Yale University. From 2018 to 2019, he was a Wiener-Anspach Postdoctoral Fellow at the Université libre de Bruxelles. His research has been published in The International History Review, History Compass, and the Review of International Studies.

- 07/2019-09/2022
Lecturer, Modern History, Helmut-Schmidt-Universität, Hamburg
- 2018-2019
Wiener-Anspach Postdoctoral Fellow, Université libre de Bruxelles
- 2017-2018
Brady-Johnson Fellow, International Security Studies, Yale University
- 2014-2017
DPhil in History, University of Oxford
- 2012-2014
Dual MA/MSc in International and World History, Columbia University and London School of Economics
- 2008-2012
BA in Philosophy & Economics, Universität Bayreuth