

Patricia Godbout is a Professor in the Department of Literature and Communications at the Université de Sherbrooke and President of the Canadian Translation Studies Association. She holds a PhD in French Studies from the Université de Sherbrooke and has many years of experience in the field of literary translation in Canada, both as a translator and a researcher. She has also participated in numerous conferences and has contributed, as a member of the Scientific Committee, to the program of Transfiction 3: The Fictions of Translation. Her most recent work Les traducteurs fictifs et les questions de langue et d'identité dans la littérature québécoise contemporaine is forthcoming.