

Miriam Ben Zeev Hofman (born 1948) got her Ph.D. at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem (1978) and has taught at the Department of Jewish History of the Ben Gurion University of the Negev, Beersheva, from 1979 to 2015. Her research focuses on the history of the Jews in the Hellenistic and Roman periods, with special emphasis on Jewish-Roman relations from cultural, juridical and political perspectives, and on the historical reliability of Josephus Flavius' writings. She wrote about Jewish Rights in the Roman World: the Greek and Roman Documents Quoted by Josephus Flavius (Texts and Studies in Ancient Judaism 74, ed. by Martin Hengel and Peter Schäfer, Tübingen: J.C.B. Mohr (Paul Siebeck), 1998) and Diaspora Judaism in Turmoil, 116/117 CE: Ancient Sources and Modern Insights (Interdisciplinary Studies in Ancient Culture and Religion, vol. 6, ed. by Leonard V. Rutgers. Peeters: Louvain, 2005) and, recently, Aelia Capitolina, a Question of Perspectives (Interdisciplinary Studies in Ancient Culture and Religion, vol. 24, ed. by Leonard V. Rutgers, Leuven: Peeters, 2023).
