

BORBÁLA JÚLIA SZCZUKA

Sociologist

✉ borbala.szczuka@uni-corvinus.hu

📍 Budapest, Hungary

ABOUT ME

I am a young sociologist, committed to the social utilisation of research results, and convinced that special attention to methodology is essential in social science research.

I am on the finish line of my doctoral studies, my research topic is the examination of the relationship between macro-level concerns (such as concern about climate change or Covid-19) and reproductive decision-making.

EDUCATION

Sociology BA

Corvinus University of Budapest
2013 - 2016

Sociology MA

Corvinus University of Budapest
2016 - 2019

Erasmus+ Scholarship

University of Ljubljana,
Faculty of Social Sciences
2018 spring semester

Doctoral School of Sociology and Communication Science

Corvinus University of Budapest
2019 - present (absolved status)

RESEARCH-RELATED WORK EXPERIENCE

- 2021 - present
MTA-TK "Momentum" Reproductive Sociology Research Group
Junior researcher
Aim of the project: to explore the social embeddedness of reproductive decisions.
 - Authoring a journal article based on quantitative analysis
 - Working as a co-author on the publication of an interview study within the project
- 2020 - 2022
TÁRKI Social Research Institute
Research assistant
Project title: "Children in school: Well-being and beyond - The International Survey of Children's Well-Being (ISCWeB)"
 - Conducting ordered logit regression analysis
 - Co-authoring a journal article covering methodology issues
- 2020 - 2021
Centre for Social Sciences, Institute for Sociology
Project researcher
Aim of the project: to gain insight into the effects of COVID-19 pandemic on people's everyday lives through a representative survey.
 - Descriptive analysis, data visualisation
 - Writing a research report
- 2017 - 2018
Corvinus University of Budapest
Research assistant
Project title: "Race Against Time - Interrelationships between Children, Time, Work-Life Balance and Technology"
 - Participating in the planning phase of the qualitative and quantitative parts of the research
 - Publishing a systematic literature review article with co-authors
- 2017 - 2018
Budapest Business School
Research assistant
Research projects covering topics of academic cheating and university dropouts:
 - Conducting qualitative interviews, applying thematic/template analysis, producing reports; collection and descriptive analysis of survey data
 - Planning and conducting survey and focus group research, recruiting participants, analysing results