WORK EXPERIENCE

PhD Candidate

University of Trento [31/10/2021 – Current]

City: Trento

PhD Candidate in the Food and Environmental Sciences program at the Centre for Agriculture, Food, and Environment. My research focuses on investigating production, distribution, and consumption models that serve as alternatives to those of large retailers, examining their contributions to food system diversification and their potential to enhance supply chain sustainability.

Visiting Researcher

SIFO, OsloMet [17/03/2023 – 15/09/2023]

City: Oslo | Country: Norway

Visiting Researcher at Consumption Research Norway (SIFO) in OsloMet. I am mainly involved in case study analysis of alternative food supply chain models within the framework of the European project FOODIVERSE and quantitative analysis of a European survey on consumer behaviour and attitudes from 7 European countries.

Teaching activities

University of Trento [12/09/2022 – 15/12/2023]

City: Trento | Country: Italy

I led 24 hours of lectures for the "Institutions of Sociology" course (Bachelor of Sociology) to introduce students to fundamental sociological concepts and help them become familiar with scientific literature. Each year, I lecture at the Agriculture, Food and Environment Centre of the University of Trento for the Consumer Practices and Society course of the Enology degree course. Additionally, I led guest lectures on "Research Methodologies in Food Studies" for the Communication Sciences Bachelor's program at the University of Bologna.

Research Fellow

Università di Trento [01/07/2020 – 30/06/2021]

City: Trento | Country: Italy

Member of the European project SATURN Climate-KIC. In this context, I supervise the institutional project "Nutrire Trento", a participatory process aimed at finding innovative ways to "feed the city of Trento in a better way". My research objectives deal with the involvement of local stakeholders and the coordination of experimental short supply chain initiatives.

Project Coordinator

Università di Trento [01/04/2020 – 15/03/2023]

City: Trento | Country: Italy

I coordinated the short supply chain project "Nutrire Trento #Fase2". My role was to constantly support the participants, create questionnaires and analyse the results. Once the initiative was completed, I coordinated the "NaturalMente in Trentino" short supply chain project, a Community Supported Agriculture. My responsibilities included providing ongoing support to participants, developing new strategies for trade products, approaching potential new members, monitoring sales flows, creating questionnaires and analysing results. These initiatives were financed by the HELPFood project (EIT Food) and by the FOODIVERSE project.
