

BIO SKETCH ANNA M. BORGHI

Anna has a Master's in Philosophy and a PhD in Psychology, both at the University of Bologna. During her PhD and post-doc, she has been a visiting scholar at the University of Chicago and Emory University in Atlanta, and later at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. After being a faculty member at the University of Bologna, she moved to Sapienza University of Rome in 2017, where she is professor of General Psychology. Since 2001, she is also an associate researcher at the Institute of Cognitive Sciences and Technologies, Italian National Research Council, Rome.

Anna investigates sensorimotor and social aspects of cognition and behavior in young adults, children, and older adults. Research in her lab (BALLAB, Body, Action, and Language Lab) concerns the role of perception, action, and social interaction in concepts and language. Specific topics of interest concern abstract concepts, including numbers, the impact of language - especially inner speech - on cognition, conceptual differences across cultures, populations, and ages, and contextual influences on objects' affordances.

Her research received funding from the European Community, FARBB, Sapienza University, PRIN, and PNRR.

She has been chief editor of the specialty Frontiers in Philosophical and Theoretical Psychology and associate editor of Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society B, PeerJ, and Psychological Research.
